Academic Support Resources and Programs

Graduate School of Education

The Graduate School of Education offers initial licensure teacher preparation programs in a five-year format for current undergraduate students and a post baccalaureate option for students who hold their bachelor's degree. These are graduate programs leading to a Master of Education degree (Ed.M.) and a teaching license through the New Jersey Department of Education to teach in New Jersey public schools. We also offer a wide variety of non-licensure programs, advanced teaching licenses, Ed.D. and Ph.D. Programs.

Graduate Writing Program

The Graduate Writing Program supports graduate students from across the Rutgers community in their scholarly writing goals, from coursework papers to articles and dissertations. Based on expert research in composition studies, the GWP’s curriculum helps students master the genres and styles of academic writing. Additionally, students develop professional writing habits, including techniques for time management, goal setting, and resilience. Graduate students of all levels are welcome.

Learning Centers

The Learning Centers support students through many free services for those seeking to enhance their academic careers. As part of the Office of the Chancellor-Provost at Rutgers–New Brunswick, the centers also partner with faculty and staff interested in learning new instructional strategies or developing new ways to help their students. The Learning Centers (LCs) provide centralized academic support services to develop students’ skills, strategies, and behaviors that lead to academic persistence and lasting success. Through in-class services such as the Learning Assistant Program and academic presentations, and co-curricular services including peer-led tutoring, academic coaching, study groups, workshops, and study spaces, we meet a variety of student needs.
